HIGH LIVING COST
HAS HIT HUSTINGS
AS WELL AS HOMES*Coming Campaign Will Be Most Expensive Known in History of Politics.*WILL REQUIRE MILLIONS

To Meet the Legitimate Expenditures
of the Major Parties the Radio Will Be an Entirely New but Very Large Item in Headquarters Bills.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Plans being made for the presidential campaign this year contemplate probably the largest expenditure of money in the history of politics. The use of money in pre-election fights no longer carries with it the taint of corruption.
Legitimate expenses have grown greater as the years have gone by and the high cost of living has hit
the hustings as well as the home.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the special Senate committee which is to report campaign expenditures, expects to have a busy time of it between now and early November, for all of the committees have decided to emulate the example of Chairman Butler, of the Republicans, and give Mr. Borah detailed reports from time to time as the campaign progresses.

Announcement that the independent progressives headed by Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler are going to attempt to raise a campaign fund of at least $2,000,000 gives some indication of what the aggregate expenditures of the campaign may be.
This is far more than the Democrats were able to obtain in 1920. The Democrats practically starved for death that year while the Republicans
revelled in plenty.

This year the Democrats are hopeful that things will be different. They may easily raise a campaign fund of $5,000,000. The Republicans may raise even more, so there is reason to believe that in the national political strong houses there will be gathered approximately $15,000,000 for election purposes.

Radio, an entirely new expense in national campaigns, will get the lion's share of the expenditure according to present plans. The broadcasting companies are going to pump money and get back some of it in the heavy sums they have spent in developing this newest art of communication. Thus far there has been no attempt to standardize the political charges for broadcasting other than a preliminary statement by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company that it expected to get $10 a minute and to limit speeches to ten minutes duration.

This time limit is proposed not alone for the benefit of the listeners—

ant, headed by Edward Stof, which has a cabin near Rodney. The incessant charge was made by Wingrove paying $100 and costs in the case.

On the charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, he was held for court under $300 cash bond.
The Queer girl is being held as a witness in the case.

New York Swelters
Under 88 Degrees

By United Press.
NEW YORK, July 25.—A promised storm was looked forward to by sweltering New Yorkers today to break the heat wave which has griped
the city for 48 hours, causing numerous prostrations and the death of a man who crawled into an ice wagon to escape the heat which amounted to 88 degrees. Thousands sleep on the beaches.

At 11 A. M. today it was almost uncomfortable as the peak yesterday
but the thermometer registered only 78 degrees. The sky was overcast.

Butler Intends to Stick, He Declares

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—Brigadier General Smalley D. Butler, in his weekly talk to police inspectors
and lieutenants Thursday, declared that he had been appointed director of public safety for four years and that he would not quit unless he was "kicked out."

The director's remarks were regarded by his subordinates as significant because of recent reports that General Butler would not be retained after leave of absence from the Marine corps expires next January.

BURGLED ALARM SHE FRAKED BLAMED FOR
DEATH OF WOMAN

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, July 25.—When the landlord installed a burglar alarm in her apartment house Mrs.
Annie B. Warren-Bachbach remonstrated.

me," she said. "I am too nervous

out in the night and Mrs. Warren-Bachbach suffered a stroke of paralysis. She died last night.

Legion Membership
In 24th District
Gained 10 Per Cent

July 21, one month in advance of the opening of the state convention of the American Legion at Greensburg, membership records of posts
in the State were balanced for representation at the convention. District 24, Fayette and Somerset counties, of which Correll J. Poole of Connellsville is deputy commander, showed a gain of 10 per cent over the entire membership for 1923. The district was standing ninth in the state at that time.

Uniontown was leading the district,
with Connellsville second, Brownsville third and Windber fourth. The membership of the Uniontown post is shown to be 304; Milton L. Bishop of Connellsville, 220.

Fayette county needs but 11 more
to make an even thousand members.
"We expect to have that number before the convention opens," Commander Poole said.

The district membership increased from 1,174 to 1,286. The district will likely have 1,300 members before the convention.

The district has turned in $125 on the $10,000 fund being raised by the Legion in Pennsylvania to help secure adjudication of more than 2,000 claims of disabled ex-service men in the State. This money is being raised to help ex-soldiers who are disabled and unable to press their claims for compensation. Each district is expected to raise $300 before the opening of the convention.

The state as a whole has exceeded the 1923 membership. State Commander J. Leo Collins of Pittsburg reports that the state membership reached $9,000 by August 31. An average of five members for each post in the State will put the organization
over that mark.

SCOTSDALE YOUTHS SMASH WINDOWS IN
FISTIC ENCOUNTERS

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Pa., July 25.—It cost
Ralph Anderson, 20, and Della Ba-dina, 15, $75 to pay damages resulting from settlement of trouble between them by a fistic encounter. In addition each was assessed $5 by Burgess Walter Schaeffer for violation of a borough ordinance against fighting.

The youths became involved Wednesday night between 9:30 and 10
o'clock in Broadway, diagonally across from the West Penn waiting room. The battle was so warm that one went through the window of the store of C. L. Holtzer. At the approach of the police the two fled.
Soon afterward they resumed the fight at Pittsburg and Spring streets
and here one of them crashed through a window of the store of Peter Gentile.

Some time later they were arrested by Patrolmen Hoffman and Gaines.

"BIG FIVE" CALLS
PLENARY SESSION
OF ALLIES MONDAY*Still Widely Separated, Envoys
Will Make Effort to Compose Differences.*PRIVATE PARLEYS GO ON

By United Press.
LONDON, July 25.—With the gulf
between the viewpoints of the French and Anglo-American bankers as wide as ever, the "big five" of the inter-allied conference—Ambassador Kellogg, Premier MacDonald, Herriot, and Thomas and Count DeSefani—
not at No. 10 Downing street today to resume their struggle for a compromise.

A meeting of the first committee of the conference, which has to deal with the points under dispute, was postponed pending the outcome of this unofficial meeting. A plenary session of the conference was announced today by the "big five" for 4
P. M. Monday. Meantime the weekend will be spent in a series of private conferences. It is hoped thus to avert the climax and reach a solution of the method of declaring sanctions in the event of Germany's default.

The first committee will meet Monday morning when it is hoped a formula will be available permitting revision of the previous report which was rejected by the bankers. The plenary session will also take up the question of the manner in which Germany shall be heard, as it is expected that justice report will be ready by that time.

Coal Man's Car

Kirkpatrick, her son, Harold, and two daughters were injured Wednesday afternoon when the car in which they were riding was struck by a large automobile, driven by Edward P. Hitch-

Kirkpatrick machine the Hitchman car dashed across the road and struck a telephone pole. The occupants of the latter car escaped injury. The Kirkpatrick were returning to their home after attending a church picnic
held at Palmer's Park, near Monroeville.

Mr. Hitchman was placed under ar-guilty on a charge of reckless driving.

He was fined $25. Mr. Hitchman is a brother of the Hitchmans of Mount Pleasant.

Impure books and pictures were condemned by Rev. H. A. Glennon, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church at Duquesne, in an address before the Rotary Club of Connellsville Thursday. Rev. Glennon declared they are doing more to corrupt the young people than anything else.

The old-fashioned home is passing,
the minister said, deploring the fact that too often today the children are masters of the parents.

Father, Glennon complimented Protestant pastors for the efforts being put forward toward religious training of the young.

Daniel C. Hood
Will Go Motoring
100th Birthday

Next Thursday Daniel C. Hood, the county's oldest citizen, will have reached the century mark. At least there is no indication today that he will be denied. He is apparently as vigorous as he has been for the past year or more. He calls three times a day—good substantial ones—
and were it not that his arteries have become hardened there seems to be no reason why he might not live on for several years.

DEPUTIES NAMED
TO RE-VACCINATE
SCHOOL CHILDREN*All Who Have Undergone Unsuccessful Efforts Must Be Again Inoculated.*DR. BROOKS LOCAL DEPUTY

Dr. O. R. Altman, county medical director, has been notified by the state department of health that Dr. Charles H. Brooks, of Connellsville, has been named as a deputy to re-vaccinate school children who have undergone two or more unsuccessful attempts at vaccination against small-pox.

Dr. A. E. Goughnour, Point Marion; Dr. R. R. Ingraham, Masontown; Dr. George H. Foy, Fayette City;
Dr. D. D. Brooks, Connellsville; Dr.
Robert E. Heath, Fairbance; Dr.
W. B. Crawford, Brownsville; Dr. C.
H. Lachar, Uniontown; Dr. Charles
C. Ryan, Republic; Dr. J. L. McCracken, Smithfield.

School children living in the rural districts who have been twice unsuccessfully vaccinated, or those who had been admitted to school last term on an official temporary certificate must be re-vaccinated by the county medical director, or one of these official deputies, who will grant a temporary certificate which will admit them to school for the current year. In cities, boroughs or townships of the first class having organized boards of health, this official re-vaccination must be performed by the board of health physicians.

Teachers or school principals are not allowed to admit children to school unless they present, or have already filed a certificate of successful vaccination, or in the case of unsuccessful results the official temporary certificate, which must have been issued after July 1 of the present year, on which date temporary cerificates issued during the previous school term became void.

The county medical director has pointed out the fact that school teachers must be careful in demanding a proper vaccination certificate.
A certificate stating that a child has been vaccinated is not sufficient. The vaccination physician must certify that an examination of the child made not less than eight days after vaccination disclosed a vaccination scar,
or clearly indicating a successful vaccination. If this vaccination certificate is not in evidence, the physician cannot legally certify, and the child must be re-vaccinated.

The Supreme Court has ruled that it is obligatory to use the vaccination certificate forms prescribed by the State Department of Health. These forms are furnished free of charge to all physicians practicing in the second class townships, and any other form cannot legally be accepted by the teacher or principal.

Citing the law, it is also explained that teachers may not accept cerificates issued by the family physician or school medical inspectors because of alleged physical disability. Cases of actual physical disability for vaccination are rare and a successful vaccination is a well known fact. No child is to be admitted to school
unless he is a fit subject for vaccination. If physical disability is claimed such cases must be passed upon by the county medical director or one of the officials above named.

School medical inspectors are directed by the secretary of health to verify the existence of the required vaccination certificate and pass upon the validity of vaccination certificates filed.

pox.

"S" Curve on Road
To Vanderbilt Is Being Eliminated

Work on the elimination of "S"
curve on the Vanderbilt road is under way and is progressing rapidly.
A steam shovel is excavating the earth through the farms while a gang of men are busily engaged. The road will be without a curve after completion. It was said that it will be closed for 70 days.

The sharp double curve that resembles an "S" by the way it winds around the hill is one of the most dangerous on the highway. Numbers of accidents have taken place on the hill, some resulting in deaths.

The road has been closed for traffic
since signs were posted at Hickory Bottom and at Vanderbilt. Automobiles have been traveling by way of Leadspring No. 1, between Connellville and Vanderbilt. Some have been using the old country road
across the hills to Trotter, beginning near Italy Crossing, about two miles north of Vanderbilt. Two miles of the distance is cut by using this road
and automobiles may avoid the steep Leadspring hill. Both roads are in good condition. The latter is a favorite for automobiles going into Vanderbilt with the former as the favorite for those going out of Vanderbilt.

The automobiles are warned in using these roads to drive at a moderate rate of speed. The roads are only in some places wide enough for two automobiles to pass.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A Beneficial Dance.

One Mother Says: Here's a funny little dance to teach a child and it is excellent for strengthening the muscles of the child's feet. The youngster first puts the feet together and hops up and down, counting "one-two" for sixteen counts. Next she starts with the feet together in the same way, hopping twice on one foot and twice on another. The third step is the same as the second, except that while she is hopping she raises the leg to the side, when it isn't being used to hop on. If you have a phonograph she will enjoy doing it to music.

Belted Wives and Mothers.

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel stays that made a twenty inch waist and the long street sweeping skirts to the sports clothes of the present day has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. It, however, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backaches, headaches, nervousness and irritability. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. A Super-Clay

Brought Me Beauty and Personal Youth.

By Edna Wallace Hopper.

I look back on a glorious career. First, as a famous beauty. Then for 15 years, a stage star. And now as a grandmother's maid. A beauty still, playing a beauty's part.

My White Youth Clay.

Old days were crude and muddy. Mine in white, refined and dainty. Old types had one clay—mine has two. There are eleven ingredients embodied in mine, to bring me the maximum results.

I owe this clay to men who have given me many years of scientific study. It is a super-clay—mine has one application. I have seen older women seem to drop 10 years.

Clay is a beauty essential. No girl can look her best without it. No woman keep her youth. Look at all the women all young. That is largely due to clay.

I have no great interest in urging women to use my particular clay. But I do urge them to use some clay. I have found that mine brings multiplied results, but better the old type than none.

The Magical Effects.

My White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs or mars it. It draws out the causes of blackheads and pimples. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it.

Presbyterians All But Clinch Horse Shoe Title

Only Unusual Feat by Methodists in Postponed Game Can Change Standing.

The Lutherans lost their chance to win the Church Horsehoe League championship last evening when the Presbyterians took 15 out of 25 games from the former league leaders. By virtue of the overwhelming victory, the Presbyterians have virtually clinched the championship.

The Methodist and Christians have a postponed match to play Monday evening. Only by winning 15 out of the 25 games can the Methodists displace the Presbyterians. While it is possible, it is considered altogether improbable that this feat can be accomplished.

Eric Peterson, whom everyone counted as the main factor of the Lutheran machine, was unable to stage the comeback he had hoped to stage in the final yesterday. Eric and Ray, his partner, were outclassed by Miner and Morgan, who scored 19 rings, while Dr. Hietrik scored six.

Swan and Leaphine took three out of five from Christians and W. Downs and Wilhelm and Jones took five from Grison and Storey, while Miner and Morgan took five from Hietrik and Peterson. Cable and Barnhart put up the best game for the Lutherans, winning four out of five from Mullen and Haynes. Hoop and Ringler took three out of five from Downs and Lison.

Last evening's scores: Presbyterian 1; Lutherans, Christian and W. Downs 2; Methodist 1; Mullen and Haynes 1; Lutherans, Cable and Barnhart 4; Lutheran, Hoop and Ringler 2; Lutheran, Hoop and Ringler 2; Lutheran, Hoop and Ringler 2.

STEWART TEAM LOSES CLOSE ONE TO YOUNGWOOD

The hard hitting Stewart team was noosed out last evening by the Youngwood railroaders in one of the best pitchers' duels of the year, which went to the crack Youngwood outfit by a 2 to 1 score. The game was played at Youngwood. Cole, for Stewart, allowed but two hits, one being a double. He breezed nine and gave one free Mike Jacobs a good game for the Youngwood line, allowing Stewart four hits and whiffing five. He issued no passes.

Scottsdale Team Wants to Play With Capstan

The Fourth Ward baseball team at Scottsdale would like to arrange a game in Connelville with Capstan. Coach M. F. Petonic called the Courier this morning to say that his boys are desirous of meeting the game outfit and believe that they can make an impression. They range from 10 to 25 years in age and have won 18 out of 25 games played and have gone 10 straight without a defeat. Mr. Petonic can be reached by calling Bell 344, Scottsdale.

Mr. Petonic has suggested August 1 in Connelville as the date for the first game, his players being able to get away on Saturdays only.

FANS CRY FOR BETTER TEAMS; CAPSTAN NEEDS MORE FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Baseball fans, who have seen the Capstan Independents in action, are raising a howl about the kind of teams being played by the glass blowers, asking for better attractions, giving reference to several Pittsburgh teams. Here is the solution:

"Why raise a howl to Manager Percy? Why not pass it on to the other fans and see that the Capstan officials get some money and give you better teams? The fans, who pay to see the games, are responsible for the teams played by the Capstan outfit. Give more money, the club officials will have a greater area to cover and would venture into the Pittsburgh district for better attractions.

"The players of the Capstan squad are playing merely for the love of the game. There is not one on the squad who draws a salary. Instead, he is called upon many a time to help square up the debts of the glass blowers' outfit. Why should he, a hard workman, pay out money to exert himself just to please someone else, who isn't trying to help him along?"

"The fans in this community, if they desire better attractions, should do something to get more money into the folds of the Capstan officials, and better teams will be brought to South Connelville. With receipts of $20 or $30, the team barely escapes a deficit as that is the regular guarantee asked by teams in this district. To get a Pittsburgh team here, $100 is the least amount that would be considered by any outfit. Plenty of difference in $20 and $100. Indeed, the public doesn't expect the players to make up the $80 between themselves just to accommodate someone else.

"Get more money and you'll get better games in all that Manager Percy has to say to the public who would like to see better attractions at the South Connelville grounds."

Tuesday, Beate "French Tiger."

Gene Tunney stopped Georges Carpentier, the French idol, last evening by a technical knockout in the final round of a 15-round battle. Tunney had everything his own way throughout the fight. The Frenchman thrilled 50,000 fight fans by refusing to quit after the referee tried to stop the fight on several occasions. Body blows accounted for the Frenchman's defeat. The referee stopped the fight when Carpentier came to the center of the ring, in agony, his hands hanging to his sides, in the final round.

Of Interest to Fans.

Deportation of Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine boxer, was demanded by Captain William S. Chase of Brooklyn, head of the New York Civic League of United States Attorney Hayward "in the interest of clean sports and morals."

The Pirates recuperated and tripped the Brooklyn Dodgers in the jaw-wal combat by an 8 to 1 score. Yid twirled for the Pirates and was opposed by Roberts and Ehrhardt.

The Detroit Americans seasawed back into first place yesterday, downing the world's champions 5 to 4 in a night inning contest. Eddie Wells twirled the last inning for the Tigers and held the Yankees hitless.

Carl Roemele, formerly shortstop for the Connelville Independents and recently playing the short field for the Uniontown Elks, was released by the Elks for failing to show up for the Sunday game. Roemele has signed with the Harmarville Consumers and will play against the Elks on Saturday.

BASEBALL SQUITS

Lincoln has obtained Pitcher Lindberg from Des Moines.

Oakland is said to be dickering for the purchase of Oscar Vitt, veteran infielder of Salt Lake.

St. Joseph has released Pitcher Roy Birkenstock, a right-hander, to Peoria of the Three-I league.

Those who are known as hot weather pitchers have certainly been deprived of their alibi.

High Point has obtained Pitcher Jelima from the Asheville Sally league team. He is a right-hander.

Greensboro has signed Pitcher Harris, a semi-pro youngster, from Alexander county, North Carolina.

Lester Howo, a right-hand pitcher, has been secured by the Mobile Southern association team from the Boston Red Sox.

A book could be written entitled "The Passing of Babe Ruth," but just at present it would concern important bases on balls.

Pedro Dihar, Cuban pitcher, who joined the Reds last spring, has been released to the St. Petersburg club of the Florida league.

It is estimated this country uses eight billion pop bottles a year; the ratio being roughly about eight hundred thousand bottles per umpire.

Officials of the Asheville team of the South Atlantic association announced the purchase of outfielder Eddie Johnson from the Greenville club.

Joe Genschger, the Giant pitcher who was released outright to Louisville as final payment on the Wayland Dean deal, said he would quit baseball unless his terms are met.

Clinton Blume, pitcher, formerly with the New York Giants, is now the property of the Toronto club, having been purchased from Memphis in the Southern association.

From the viewpoint of gate receipts, Philadelphia is credited with being the most profitable town on the pugilistic map. For more than a generation the fight game has flourished continuously in the Quaker City.

McKEESPORT TUBE TEAM AT SCOTSDALE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

SCOTSDALE, July 24.—A record breaking crowd is expected at Athletic Park, Saturday at 3:30 o'clock when the McKeesport Tubers make their first appearance of the 1936 season. Efforts to book the Tubers, who have beaten Backville Stogies four straight games, Jeannette, Johnstown, Bolivar and the Homestead Grays, have been unsuccessful until this time.

Jack Snyder, a former Brooklyn National League catcher, who was with Scottdale the early part of the season, will be with the Tubers. Jack is rated by Clove Mathers, manager of Charleroi, and Jimmy Forsythe of the Tubers, as the best catcher in semi-pro ball. Picard, the former Collier and Scottdale twirler, will likely be on the mound for the visitors. Lefty Ed Loyne, the Chillicothe star, may also get a chance to work against the Scottdales. Lefty has a bad grouch against the Scottdale club, which left him drop out after his disappointing work against the Grays and other clubs. The Tubers boast, too, of Johnson, a kid phenom, who had been turning back practically all of the clubs he worked against.

Following Saturday's game will be Jeannette at Athletic Park, July 30. Next Saturday the Cumberland Colts will play and August 2 West Newton will meet for the second of the series.

Delicate Frocks for Summer Wear

Gowns of Lace Have Again Sprung Into Popularity.

Lace is one element in the subject of dress that never goes out of fashion. The very word conveys the idea of luxury, refinement, of elegance. As a mode it has appeared in cycles. It was accepted years ago as the proper trimming for every dress occasion, and everybody that aspired to be anybody sought, inherited or otherwise acquired fine lace.

Every woman of fashion had collars, vestings, sleeves of lace. The frocks of children of the affluent were trimmed with sheer valenciennes, downy wores, shawls and garlands of pearls and jewels. The lace was everywhere, and a bride who had fancy headpieces was expected to display its evidence in a wedding veil of old lace.

Then, wearing of the usual, the women of fashion used no lace, or at most none, for seasons after season.

One reason was, perhaps, that the simplest was the most modern. Another was the extreme simplicity of the styles that have been the rage until just lately. Now, because women are bored with severity and unrelieved plainness, lace has come back strong.

The vogue has been growing for three seasons and has engaged the talent of some of the leading artists of Paris, whose lace gowns are achievements made possible by the great variety of charming novelty laces and the revival of some of the beautiful old types, real and imitation. Spanish, Bohemian, chamois, shadow laces are popular for entire gowns, or in combination with the material, and some particularly charming models have been established by prominent modistes for summer afternoon and evening gowns. Tulle net and chiffon have been almost entirely superseded by the new lace gowns and some important styles of striking character have been received by exclusive shops in New York.

White Lace Gowns.
In white the lace gowns are enchanting, particularly in Spanish, Bohemian, chamois, shadow, after all, approaches chastity in beauty and decorative quality, and an evening dress of white chastity is the very quintessence of distinction.

A three-piece costume presented by Doucet as one of his season's successes is built on a foundation of ivory crepe de chine. The gown is of the plain crepe, simply made and slightly draped by being caught up with a cluster of small tucks over each hip. It is round at the neck, which is bound simply with the material, and it is sleeveless.

The coat, seven eighths length, is straight and has around the bottom a heavy applique ivory lace, with which the straight coat sleeves are finished. A narrow collar of white fox adds a touch of importance to this charming ensemble.

In addition to the conventional black or white in gowns of lace, some new things have been successfully presented, illustrating the artistic possibilities of the colored laces. A dream of Gray Lace Over Mauve Satin, With Cash.

A gown in made of gray lace over a slip of mauve satin, in which is added a wash of powder blue with yellow with a bow and long ends directly in front.

Doucet has illustrated in one of his latest creations the charm of silver gray satin over black tulle, and another successful combination is achieved by Berthe, Hermance with sheer lace over black-colored, crepe marocain, with a lace shawl applique, and draped in most effectively.

An effect is made by some prominent couturiers to bring Irish lace back into favor. It is only and smart, as always, on Irish frocks, summer silks, crepes and velvets, in collars, yokes, cuffs or trimmings, and some of the new patterns are lovely. But the present styles in gowns are too soft for Irish lace, and the lighter more ethereal laces are preferred.

The real laces in flowers, wide and narrow, and in "fleur" now being shown by some of the best houses, are a joy. There are beautiful examples of duchesse, rose point, point d'Alencon, point de Venise, point applique, in graceful shaped berthes, cape collars and straight Valenciennes as seen somewhat, but more than anything an lingerie, baby clothes and for trimming, blouses, trappings.

The linen laces, flat most of all, are now seen almost exclusively. The modistes on this side who copy French fashions are expecting a still greater vogue for lace in next winter's styles.

Metal Lace on Evening Gown.
Metal lace is seen on some of the evening gowns. Redfern, for example, has designed a stunning dinner gown which will answer as well for dancing. The dress itself is made of liberty satin, abacothlike, decollete and sleeveless. At the line of the knee is applied a circular flounce in points where it meets the train, or silver guipure lace over chiffon.

Another luscious thing is an evening gown of Beers' designing, in rose-colored chiffon beaded in crystal. The beading is done in narrow stripes from neck to hem, each finished just below the line with long tassels and drapes over a (tulle) flounce of the chiffon, of which is made also a long scarf, attached to the skirt at the back and long enough to be carried over the arms and shoulders.

The beaded gowns rival in favor the new styles in colored laces which women are finding to be most complementary to figure and complexion. The laces, softly tinted golden brown, yellow, the alps of ivory, peach or yellow, are indescribably delicate, with a cobwebby effect, and are even more elegant than the black lace—especially in the warm weather evening models.

Doucet has made for midsummer wear several of these tinted lace gowns. One of coral color, very sheer, tells an apricot-colored satin slip and has touches of gold lace introduced in the bodice and the slightly draped skirt. A large gold rose is attached at one side, where the skirt is lifted at the hip line.

Silver gray silk lace over aquamarine satin is a beautifully conceived combination that suggests moonlight on a summer sea. The colors run the scale in shades of sea, beige, brown, gray, tangerine, blue and even bright scarlet, in the new laces offered in the best shops.

It is in the scarf that lace is most happily used, and the ideas expressed in the arrangement of a lace scarf in the drapery of a gown are many and charming.

FLAME SAFETY LAMP BEING REPLACED BY ELECTRIC CAP MODEL

Estimated That 200,000 of the More Modern Device Are Now in Use.

ART HAS A LONG HISTORY

The flame safety lamp is being rapidly replaced by the electric lamp as a device for illuminating the miner's working place, state Department of the Interior investigators in Bulletin 277, just issued by the Bureau of Mines. In the United States the electric cap lamp has been widely adopted. It being estimated that there are at present about 200,000 of this type of lamp in use. In 1911 approximately 45,000 flame lamps and no electric lamps were being used in the Pennsylvania bituminous mines, which were then producing 35 per cent of all the coal mined in this country. By 1935 the flame lamps had decreased to 17,000, whereas electric lamps totaled nearly 40,000. In Great Britain during the same years the total of 733,344 flame lamps decreased to 280,165 and the electric lamps increased from 4,381 to 154,531. No later reliable figures are at hand. Though coal was known to the ancients, the earliest mention being credited to Theophrastus, a Greek writer, about 371 B. C., the first known record of coal mining was made in England about 1180 A. D., the Bureau of Mines points out. It was at least 400 years later before the flame safety lamp was introduced. At first coal was undoubtedly obtained from outcrops, and mining was done by daylight. As the outcrops were worked out, the miners advanced gradually further and further into the coal bed, until the openings became quite dark. To continue mining, the small mine of today. Even the approximate date when lamps or tallow candles were first used in mines is unknown, but some source of artificial light was probably used in metal mines long before coal mining began. According to a treatise on the metal mines published in 1556, given evidence that shows conditions prevailing in his time. One of these sketches shows a miner carrying a lamp which apparently consisted of a wick dipped in grease or oil of some kind. This practice would naturally be subject to considerable risk as the wick developed. As the mine workings were extended underground, the amount of methane liberated into the mine atmosphere increased, rendering the open light a menace to safety and causing many deaths. Before flame safety lamps were introduced the mining of coal in gaseous mines was extremely hazardous.

The steel mill invented by Speeding about 1790 was a thin steel disk, as shown that it could be rotated rapidly by a hand crank. The light was produced by the friction of sparks that resulted from holding a piece of flint against the rim of the steel disk. Numerous explosions were attributed to the use of these mills. Owing to the danger with which steel mills were regarded, it is probable that many miners resorted to using open flame lamps, a practice that was still more dangerous. This undoubtedly brought about some of the disasters that occurred just before the introduction of the flame safety lamps. Moreover, coal-mining conditions were deplorable at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and it is not strange that several men, practically at the same time, should attempt to develop a safer mode of lighting mines.

Dr. William Reid Clanny was undoubtedly the first to design a closed flame lamp and the first to build a lamp that he actually tested underground. His first model was made about 1811. George Stephenson made lamps of three distinct models and tested them underground in 1815. The first flame safety lamp devised by Sir Humphry Davy was put in service in January 1815 by the end of that year they were in fairly general use in the mines of the North of England district.

Flame safety lamps have been used in gaseous mines since the Davy lamp was introduced, more than 100 years ago.

The flame safety lamps are capable of doing more than the flame lanterns. First, under normal conditions, they can be used in a mine atmosphere that contains an explosive mixture of gas and air without great danger of exploding. Second, to an experienced man they indicate percentage of gas much lower than the explosive limit, and thus can be used to indicate to workers the approach of an unsafe condition in the mine atmosphere. Third, flame lamps will not burn in an atmosphere greatly deficient in oxygen, and they therefore warn the users of such deficiency in time to withdraw to a place of safety.

Flame safety lamps are still used regularly widely in the United States for general illumination and to a still greater extent for detecting gas. Many coal producing states require the owners to use these lamps in gaseous mines, and the regulations of several states specify that a given number of such lamps be kept available for emergency service.

In Bulletin 277, by J. W. Paul, I. G. Wiley, and E. J. Gleim, the Bureau of Mines has endeavored to compile a permanent record of a device which has served the mining industry for more than three generations. The only made possible the development of entire districts that otherwise could not have been worked, but undoubtedly saved the lives of thousands of underground workers. The bulletin contains an historical resume of the development of the safety lamp; information on federal and state regulations governing the use of such lamps; data relative to the design, operation and maintenance of

Her Condition Was Thought Hopeless.

"My wife thinks Tanlac saved her life, so I don't know better reason anyone could have for praising the medicine than that," this statement was made recently by Conrad Meinzer, 318 Meridian Ave., Scranton, Pa. "For a great many years Mrs. Meinzer had been trying faithfully to overcome stomach trouble. Finally she gave up and sought treatment in a hospital, but nothing seemed to reach her case, and she kept getting worse. "Tanlac" has brought her out of what seemed a hopeless condition to where she eats everything. All stomach misery is gone, she has no more trouble from constipation, disordered liver and kidneys and, in fact, she is like a new person. Tanlac is the only thing that has done my wife any good and I will gladly verify this statement to anyone. "Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. B. & O. Railroad Had Its Greatest Earnings in 1935

Net earnings of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company in 1935 were the greatest in the road's history. Net earnings amounted to $18,000,000 while net operating income was $12,125,125.

The net income is equivalent to 13.31 per cent on the outstanding common stock and compares with 11.31 on the amount in 1934. "President" Wilbur's report shows that the surplus income for the year plus the appropriations for capital purposes, together with the net credit arising out of settlement with the United States government for federal control, and the guaranty period and certain other adjustments brought the total surplus from $68,133,134 in 1934 to $68,726,099 for the year 1935, a gain of $592,965, or 0.87 per cent.

The president's annual report outlines as follows further details of operations during the year 1935. "As in its previous years, the 1935 program of betterments, the Baltimore & Ohio Company expended for new equipment and additions to its property $21,728,230, and operating under the terms and subject to all the restrictions of the present act, the company, as previously stated, secured the amount of $10,400,000, a larger sum than ever realized before from one year's operation, and after providing for the dividends declared upon the preferred and common stocks there remained a balance of approximately $16,000,000 available for the payment of capital obligations and for improvements and additions to the property."

Triangular Wheels
The cars that travel the rocky road to Dublin would have a much rougher time of it if their wheels were like those that the Mongolian peasant uses on his ox cart. The two wheels, says Mr. A. S. Kent in "Old Ticker Trails," are supported by iron struts, and therefore with constant use over many miles they soon lose their roundness and become flat oval-shaped, then triangular and then pentagonal. At that point the Mongol begins to think that he ought to have new wheels; but before he can reach a place where he can find a blacksmith to do the work the wheels have passed the rectangular stage and have become irregular, and the vehicle will go no further.

China's Great Wall
This historic wall, extending for a distance of more than 1,700 miles across the northern boundary of the Chinese empire, was built by the Ming emperor Ching-tse about 1600 B. C. It was built to protect his kingdom against the incursions of the Tartars, Kalmucks and other northern tribes, but proved utterly useless. It was from 15 to 20 feet high and 20 feet thick at the base, but tapered to a thickness of 10 feet at the top. It was constructed by layers of 10 to 20 feet in height, at intervals of 200 or 300 yards. The "Great Wall" is said to have required 10 years to build, and it has saved the death of tens of thousands of workers.

Old Cornish Tongue Soon to Be Memory

"Never" carries the Old Cornish tongue to the dust of an ancient language. The members of the London Cornish Association by Trevelyan Roberts, one of the few men still able to speak the old tongue, of Cornwall. Translated these mysterious syllables emerge as "A Few Words About Cornish."

Cornish, Mr. Roberts pointed out, is not quite so dead as it usually is believed, and he produced an evidence a postcard written by a little girl of eleven, who had learned the language from her father, says the Living Age. Prince Lucian Dempsie is responsible for the legend that Dorothy Penwith, who died in 1797, was the last person who spoke Cornish, a legend that is perpetuated on her tombstone.

The old lady used to wear at times the Cornish, usually ending with the words "In discreet Cornish—'Ugly black head'." In language for the people lavished upon her by the victors, John Dwyer of Zennor, who did not die until 1801, could speak it fluently. Ninety per cent of the place names in modern Cornwall show traces of the old language. In spite of the profane scoffers of Miss Penwith, Cornish boasts a few "Old Cornish" in the kitchen" is regarded as an amusing epithet.

Famous Old Church

This year marks the three hundred and thirty-fourth anniversary of the dedication of the magnificent Church of St. John at Perth, the restoration of which is now contemplated. This is without doubt one of the most interesting churches in Scotland, says the Weekly Edinburgh Scotsman. Tradition ascribes its foundation to the Picts, but, whoever founded it, it is one of the earliest stone churches built in the country, and in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, as evidenced both by ancient documents and by the surviving remains of the edifice of that time, it was magnificent and extensive. The monk of Dunfermline, to whom it was granted, allowed it to fall into disrepair—a state of affairs which Robert the Bruce set about remedying, but the restoration was stayed by his death.

"I must be off," he announced. "A few of my friends are coming in to supper after the opera. Are you coming, Christopher?"

"I don't think so, if you don't mind, Gerald," was the apologetic reply.

For some unaccountable reason, Gerald felt relieved. He took his leave of his father and sister, started up his car, and drove through the deserted darkness back to the hotel. All the time he was conscious of a little, sinister, evil, for which he could not account. The Villa Violante which he passed as he turned out of the avenue, was dark and empty. He thought of Pauline and sighed. The ghost in the empty seat by his side faded away. He was for a single moment a man, angry with himself, bitterly regretful.

"I was a cad to kiss her like that," he muttered. "All the same, a child has no right to such lips."

Gerald was in the hall of the hotel by Charles, the maître d'hôtel to whom he had left the arrangements for his supper party.

"If Mildred will be so kind as to ascend with me," the latter suggested, "I can show him the preparations I have made."

Gerald nodded and ascended to the first floor. This is the most convenient suite for informal. Charles explained, "because the door at the left-hand there communicates with Mildred's own suite of apartments, where his friends, if they like, can leave their hats and coats. I shall serve the supper myself. Everything will be as comfortable. The supper table can be moved into a corner of the room at any time desired—as soon, in fact, as Mildred cares to start dancing."

Gerald nodded and dismissed the maid. He stood for a moment in the center of the waxed floor, his hands behind his back, and a freshly lit cigarette between his lips. He looked at the door at the left-hand there, where his friends, if they like, can leave their hats and coats. He thought of Pauline and sighed. The ghost in the empty seat by his side faded away. He was for a single moment a man, angry with himself, bitterly regretful.

He turned away, and, crossing the room, opened the door leading into his own suite. A woman—an amazing vision confronted him. For a moment he was afraid. Myrtle, transfixed as though by the wand of an artist, stood before him, simple and unadorned, reminiscent of all the grace of her childhood, yet exquisitely suggestive of the woman to come. Myrtle, her hair dropped low on either side of her oval face, a rosy lip, unadorned, and natural, her eyes shining with a light that had produced a veritable triumph. Her bosom was rising and falling quickly, her lips were parted. Then she began to laugh softly. Everything was right with the world. Gerald's look of transfixed admiration told her all that she needed to know.

"With I do!" Myrtle exclaimed demurely. "You are wonderful!" Gerald exclaimed. "But—what does it mean?"

"I have come to your party," Myrtle announced, "and even Monsieur Christopher shall not send me away. I went to Madame Lemoine. She dressed me and she had my hair arranged. It was so good. When I looked in the glass I nearly kissed myself. You are pleased?"

"I am more than pleased," Gerald answered, taking her hand. "But about this party, I am not sure."

"You don't want me?" she whispered. "You could no longer resist the invitation of her lips. After a moment, however, she went away. The violinist in the room beyond had commenced a waltz. This changed Gerald, through the open door and gave a little cry of delight when she saw the room.

"Dance with me," she begged. "Just you and I, all alone. Dance with me, Gerald!"

They moved off to the middle. The violinist, smiling with pleasure. The other instruments took up the strain. Myrtle closed her eyes, half fainting with the joy of the music, the smooth floor, Gerald's arms. Presently he stopped. He was unconsciously out of breath. He took one of the gold-faded bottles from the sideboard, opened it and tilted two glasses with the foaming wine. Myrtle's eyes shone like stars as she drank.

"Oh, I am happy!" she murmured. "This is wonderful! Promise, Gerald, that you will never send me away. Promise!"

There was a shriek of voices as the room was invaded. "Madame came through the door, which led from his own suite."

Some men followed, accompanied by a little crowd of girls. Every one was curious about Myrtle. She shook hands shyly with those whom Gerald presented to her. When they asked for her name, however, he shook his head.

"Mademoiselle is our guest for this evening," he announced. "She is not, alas! of our world. Let us call her Mademoiselle X."

"Mademoiselle the Spirit, rather?" a Frenchman exclaimed. "I think that you have dragged her down from the skies. Present me, Gerald, or I shall be your enemy for life."

"The Marquis Chantelaine," Gerald murmured. "Mademoiselle X. The marquis is a shameless fellow, Myrtle, and you must not believe a word he says."

"I am shameless or not according to my surroundings," the Frenchman declared. "No one could look into the eyes of mademoiselle and speak other than the truth."

Chantelaine pointed.

"Is no one going to say nice things to others?" she complained. "Gerald, you ought to have warned us. I would have worn my new gown. It is exactly the color of the sky. Even my maid declared that I, too, slipped down from heaven."

There was a little chorus of laughter. Cocktails were brought in and cigarettes lit. Every one gathered around and talked to Myrtle. She answered them naturally enough, but every now and then with embarrassment.

"Mademoiselle X may be asked no questions," Gerald insisted. "Where she comes from I shall not tell any of you. Whether she goes after tonight, you will none of you know."

"Mademoiselle is of the haut monde, perhaps?" Nadine whispered maliciously, under her breath.

"Mademoiselle belongs to a world we are none of us privileged to enter," Gerald answered. "It is the one favor I ask, as your host. Please accept my guest as a butterfly, born this evening, passing away tomorrow."

"Oh, la, la!" Chantelaine exclaimed. "We are all like that. Give me another cocktail, Charles."

They made their way presently to the supper table. Myrtle sat at Gerald's right hand, and next to her, on the other side, was the Marquis de Chantelaine. Any form of tête-à-tête conversation, however, was impossible from the first. They all seemed to be talking together at the top of their voices in an almost incomprehensible jargon, a jumble of personal quips and sallies. Myrtle listened sympathetically, but understood little. Occasionally she laughed when the others laughed, but as a matter of fact she needed nothing to complete her happiness.

She was next to Gerald, who whispered every now and then little words of encouragement in her ear. Presently Chantelaine jumped up and danced. Phrynette followed suit and executed a wonderful pas seul. There was a good deal of boisterous applause. Myrtle felt the color burning in her cheeks. She glanced toward Gerald. He was laughing, so it must be all right. Nevertheless, she was relieved when at last Phrynette sat down.

"I will show you," Nadine suggested, "how they dance in Algiers."

There was a little chorus of applause. She was next to Gerald for a moment. He looked doubtful. He glanced toward Myrtle at his side.

"Don't overdo it, Nadine," he begged. Nadine laughed subtly.

"Is it for your tongue you fear, or yourself?" she asked. "Very well, I will give you both something to think about."

She danced at first with all the quivering grace of restrained but passionate movements. Myrtle watched her with fascinated eyes. Then suddenly she broke loose. Myrtle looked down at her plate and gripped Gerald's hand.

"Remember, I warned you, dear," he whispered. "Don't watch."

"Mademoiselle would perhaps care for a little stroll upon the balcony?" the marquis whispered in her ear. Myrtle shook her head.

"Thank you," she murmured. "I do not wish to leave Gerald. As for the dancing, it is foolish of me, but I have never seen anything like it. It never seemed to me possible that women could do such things. That is because I have not lived in the world. I shall program."

The dance came to an end amidst approving applause. Nadine, who observed and breathless, permitted to enter the door leading to Gerald's suite.

"I shall go into your bedroom and make myself tidy," she called out. "You can come and fetch me when you want me," she added, looking over her shoulder at her host.

The cox began to dance. Presently, couples stood up and danced. Then, indeed, happiness began for Myrtle. She danced with Gerald again and again, danced to music which was indeed, of the best, for Gerald was somewhat of an expert in such matters, until she forgot the load, the base of cigarette smoke, the slightly untidy condition of one or two of the guests. To her, so long as it was Gerald's arm which controlled her, it was all beautiful. By degrees she seemed to slip into her place, however incongruous it might be, in the little company. She was accepted as one of the kaleidoscopic pictures of Monte Carlo flirtations. She had come, and there was an end of it. There were other hosts besides Gerald, other Englishmen crowding all the time into the place. The very strangeness of her devotion made her to some extent a rival to be accepted philosophically.

It seemed incredible that four o'clock had arrived. There was a ball that night at the Carlton, however, so every one was resigned. They invaded Gerald's rooms for their coats and wraps. Myrtle remained talking with the marquis, with whom she had been dancing. Her body was still swaying a little to the rhythm of the music.

"So this is your first night, mademoiselle?" her companion said softly. "I shall hope that we may meet many more times."

"If you are a friend of Gerald's, I hope that we may," Myrtle replied. "You have enjoyed yourself, on the whole?" he asked, looking at her curiously.

Her ears were straining for Gerald's voice. She could hear all the time the shrill laughter of Nadine and her friends.

"I have enjoyed the dancing," she said. "I begin to believe," he said, "that you are really as young as you look."

"I am eighteen," she told him. "For that moment I was not thinking of your actual years," he explained. "How long have you known Lord Dombay?"

"Gerald?" she queried. "Only a very short time. I have never danced with him before today."

"It seems easy to believe," he said, "that you slipped down from the skies, only nowadays Heaven does not part with its children so easily. Tell me, where did you come from, really?"

"A little farm on the other side of the moorland," she said, "Gerald and Monsieur Chantelaine brought me here. Monsieur Christopher wants me to go to England, but I hope that Gerald will not let me go."
